

October 30th. 1894.

Dear Clarence,

I have reread
up your manuscript, — & given you exceedingly little help: I think I am given to overestimating my abilities.

Forgive me — and accept this attempt at assistance in the good faith in which it was offered.

I am disgusted with myself and am justly suffering from a file of the Sheet Press.

Sincerely
Grace

P.S. I will cheerfully re-write your "original" if you wish it. I endeavored to erase my notes but found I was making a hopeless mess of it.

Charles E. Heringway.
